LAST DAYS OF LIFE CARE PLAN

Section 1: Initial Assessment

Recognition of Dying

Recognizing a person is dying is complex, irrespective of diagnosis or history.

Reversible causes for the person's condition should be assessed and managed (use Health Professional's Information Sheet for guidance).

Where the MDT recognizes a person is in their last hours or days of life, they must ensure that the person, their relative, or friend have the opportunity to understand the possibility that death is imminent.

The following should be considered:
