Learning to Be GLAD PTSD Worksheet

Name:	Ioday's Date:
positive things	mindfulness expert Donald Altman, it encourages you to pay attention to that often go unnoticed in your daily life. "G" stands for grateful, "L" for learned, "A" for an accomplishment, and "D" for something that brings delight.
	you were grateful for today: Take a moment to reflect on what you were gratefund in be something simple, like the warmth of the sun or a comforting meal. Write it omething significant in your life, such as a meaningful relationship, health, or nds. Write it down:"
	you learned today: Reflect on something positive you learned about yourself be something you already knew, but it became clearer today. Write it down:
	mething you learned about another person today. Again, it might be something new, but you were more aware of it today:
Record a fact y world around y	you learned today that piqued your curiosity or increased your awareness of the you:

Write down something you learned today and how it positively changed your perspective of yourself or the world:
A - One small accomplishment you experienced today: Remember that accomplishments can be small yet significant. Write down something you accomplished today, no matter how minor it may seem:
D - Something that brought you delight today: Reflect on moments that made you laugh or smile today. Write down what brought you joy:
What small thing of beauty did you notice today? It could be in nature or everyday life:
What did you hear today that lifted your spirits? A song, a child's laughter, or a joke? Write it down:
Final Thoughts: Now, take a moment to close your eyes, breathe deeply, and visualize a positive image from your day. Focus on a significant aspect of this activity that you want to remember: