Part 2: Practicing Cognitive Defusion

Cognitive defusion involves learning to distance yourself from your thoughts. Visualize each thought as an object passing by.

1. Choose a Thought: Select one of the automatic thoughts you wrote in Part 1.

Chosen Thought: _____

2. Object Visualization: Imagine this thought as an object, like a cloud, a leaf on a stream, or a passing car. Describe the object below.

Object Description:

Part 3: Connecting with Values

Values are what give life meaning and direction. Think about what's truly important to you.

1. Values Reflection: What values do you want to uphold in your life? These are the qualities or principles that matter deeply to you.

• Value 1: _____

• Value 2: _____

• Value 3: _____

Part 4: Willingness to Experience

Willingness involves making space for uncomfortable feelings and thoughts while still moving towards your values.

1. Willingness Statement: Write a statement acknowledging your willingness to experience the negative feelings and thoughts you identified earlier while taking steps towards your values.

Willingness Statement:

Part 5: Action Commitment

1. Small Action Steps: What small actions can you take that align with your values, even when facing negative feelings and thoughts? These can be simple steps you're willing to commit to.

• Action Step 1: _____

• Action Step 2: _____

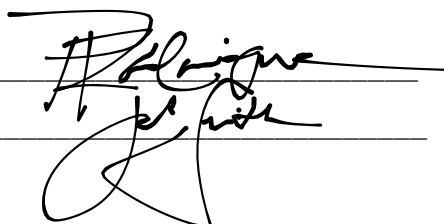

• Action Step 3: _____

2. Commitment: Commit to taking these action steps, even when challenging feelings and thoughts arise.

Commitment Statement:
