Strengths and Difficulties Questionnaire (SDQ)

Result Interpretation

To interpret the SDQ results, add up the scores for each subscale as follows:

- Emotional Symptoms (Items 1, 3, 5, 6, 24)
- Conduct Problems (Items 7, 8, 9, 10, 20)
- Hyperactivity/Inattention (Items 4, 19, 22, 23, 25)
- Peer Relationship Problems (Items 2, 11, 12, 13, 18)
- Prosocial Behavior (Items 14, 15, 16, 17, 21)

Each subscale score can range from 0 to 10. Higher scores on the Emotional Symptoms, Conduct Problems, and Hyperactivity/ Inattention subscales indicate more difficulties, while higher scores on the Peer Relationship Problems and Prosocial Behavior subscales indicate more strengths.

The overall SDQ score is calculated by adding the scores of the first four subscales (Emotional Symptoms, Conduct Problems, Hyperactivity/Inattention, and Peer Relationship Problems) and can range from 0 to 40 . Higher scores on the overall SDQ score indicate more difficulties.

Interpretation of the scores is as follows:

- Subscale scores of 0-4 are considered normal or within the typical range.
- Subscale scores of 5-6 are considered borderline or at risk
- Subscale scores of 7-10 are considered abnormal or high risk.

For the overall SDQ score

- Scores of 0-14 are considered normal or within the typical range.
- Scores of 15-19 are considered borderline or at risk.
- Scores of 20-40 are considered abnormal or high risk.

It is important to note that the SDQ is not a diagnostic tool and should be used in conjunction with other assessments and clinical judgment. A high score on the SDQ does not necessarily mean that a child has a disorder or needs treatment, but rather indicates that further evaluation or support may be warranted.
