

The Holmes and Rahe Stress Scale

Introduction

The Holmes and Rahe Stress Scale also known as the Social Readjustment Rating Scale (SRRS), was developed in 1967 by psychiatrists Thomas Holmes and Richard Rahe. This scale is designed to identify major stressful life events, which require significant adjustment and thus induce stress. The SRRS includes 43 life events, each with a specific Life Change Unit (LCU) value, with "Death of a spouse" rated as the most traumatic at 100 LCU.

By totaling the LCUs of events experienced over a year, individuals can estimate their risk of a major health breakdown in the next two years. Scores are correlated with risk levels for stress-related illness: less than 150 LCUs suggests a low risk, 150-299 LCUs a moderate risk, and over 300 LCUs a high risk of developing stress-related health issues.
